

“Language, I have often told my students, has tremendous power. It entitles some while disenfranchising others; it valorizes some ideas while denigrating others; it can open—or close—a fist or a heart...I want to convince students that if they do not work to use language to write themselves into the story of the world, then language and the language of others will write their stories instead.”

-Andrea A. Lunsford, “On the Politics and Ethics of Style”

English 102, Composition and Rhetoric—Section 045

Course Description

When you sit down to write a paper, email, poem, or even a Facebook status, you make compositional choices about how to convey information to an audience. These choices include selecting rhetorical strategies, building logical connections, and responding to audience expectations. And much of this work is done unconsciously.

In this course, we will learn to better understand the complex sets of choices you as a writer make when you put pen to paper (or more likely, fingers to keyboard). Understanding how you write in different situations and for different audiences gives you more control over your written communication. We will especially focus on writing for academic and/or “general” readers, and the skills and awareness you develop in this class should help you becomes more engaged and engaging students, employees, and citizens.

Required Books and Materials

This course requires three textbooks:	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. English 102: Joining Academic Conversations (JAC), 7th ed. 2015</li> <li>2. Educated Arguments (EA). Norton Mix. 2015</li> <li>3. Lunsford, Andrea. Easy Writer (EW), 5th Custom ed. for WVU. 2014</li> </ol>
And these additional materials:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A two pocket folder</li> <li>• A notebook or binder with blank pages</li> <li>• A pen or pencil</li> <li>• MS Word</li> <li>• Internet access to eCampus, the WVU library databases, and MIX</li> </ul>

Course Goals

The English department has established five goals for English 102; successful students should:

1. Demonstrate Rhetorical Knowledge
2. Develop Processes for Research and Writing
3. Demonstrate Critical Thinking through Exploration and Evaluation
4. Demonstrate Knowledge of Writing Conventions
5. Develop Knowledge of Writing in Digital Environments

For more information on these Course Goals, see JAC page xi.

Grade Breakdown

Formal Writing	70%
Informal Writing	20%
Participation	10%
Grades will be based on the grade descriptors found in JAC pages xiii-xv.
At Midterm you will receive In-Progress grades in all categories, which will show how you are doing in the first half of the course. At the end of the semester you will receive Final Portfolio grades. These grades will be based on the rubric in the back cover of JAC .
Informal writing will receive numbered grades between 1-5 (5 being highest and 1 being lowest), corresponding to the Informal Writing rubric in JAC page xiv.
Final-for-Now drafts will be graded as Brainstorming, Early Stage, Middle Stage, Late Stage, or Polished drafts. These indicate how much work will be necessary to produce an excellent, scholarly Final draft.

Written Assignments

This class requires you to produce five projects, several informal writings, and two reflective Portfolio Cover Letters. Assignment sheets with more detail about each piece of written work will be posted to eCampus under the Assignments tab.

Initially you will turn in a Final-for-Now draft of each project, and at the end of the semester you will revise all projects for the Final Portfolio.

The projects are:

1. Education Manifesto: In this 1,000 word (4 page) paper you will produce a polemical manifesto persuading a reader to accept an argument about education.
2. Textbook Evaluation: In this 1,000 word (4 page) group project you will analyze and evaluate either JAC or EW, making an argument about how effectively it presents information.
3. Research Proposal: This 500 word (2 page) paper will present your research topic, questions, and preliminary methodology in preparation for your Researched Argument.
4. Annotated Bibliography: For this assignment you will produce correct MLA (or another recognized citation format) bibliographic entries for five sources and a paragraph long analytical description of each source.
5. Researched Argument: For this 2,000 word (8 page) research-based paper you will develop a research question related to your major, research the subject, and compose an argumentative answer using an effective and appropriate structure.

Informal writing will generally be about 250 words (1 page) and will ask you to practice different forms of writing, produce short sections for papers, or work through pre-writing activities. These assignments will be posted to the eCampus discussion boards.

Projects will be due in class on the date listed in the Schedule below. Informal Writings should be uploaded to the Discussion Forums on eCampus before class on the due date listed in the Schedule below.

Course Policies

Attendance

The English Department's attendance policy for MWF classes allows three absences (one full week) with no penalty to your grade. After that each absence will cost one letter grade.

Participation

Lecturing is not a great way to teach, and being lectured to is not a great way to learn, so this class should involve a lot of participation. Participation may take the form of full class discussion, group work or activities, reading aloud from one of our books, or otherwise engaging in the classroom. You will also have the opportunity to provide your peer feedback through the eCampus Discussion forums, where Informal Writings will be posted. This course is for you, not for me, so the more engaged you are the more you will get out of this class.

If you don't understand something—a reading, assignment, concept—please, please, please ask.

Academic Integrity

The university, English department, and I assume you will approach academic work honestly, and submit your own original work for this course. Failure to do so will result in a failing grade for the assignment, the course, or a more severe penalty.

You are required to be familiar with the Student Conduct Code. Please note that you are bound by the policy whether you plagiarize knowingly and purposefully or unintentionally.

Technology

eCampus will provide additional resources and information for our class. I will post assignment sheets, videos, supplemental readings, and other useful tools.

When I receive an e-mail I always reply to it. If you don't hear back from me by the next afternoon it means I have not received the e-mail and you should resend it.

Although electronics are an important part of both modern research and modern life, it is important that personal electronics—cell/smart phones, laptops, tablets, etc.—do not interfere with class. If these devices become a distraction for you, me, or other class members, you will be asked to put them away. Please set your phone to silent or turn it off.

Late Work

Late work is unprofessional and any assignment turned in after the deadline will not receive credit. Informal Writings must be posted to the eCampus discussion board before class begins on the specified day, and Projects will be collected at the beginning of class time. Make sure to check the schedule regularly for all due dates.

Eberly Writing Studio (formerly the Writing Center)

The Eberly Writing Studio is a service your tuition dollars have already paid for. The tutors are your fellow students, and they are trained to help with all aspects of the writing process.

The Studio is in Colson Hall G02, near my office. Check out their website at <http://speakwrite.wvu.edu/writing-studio>, which includes a link to sign up for an appointment online, or you can stop by. Their hours are 10-5 MTWR, and 10-3 F.

Social Justice and Accessibility Services

The West Virginia University community and I are committed to creating and fostering a positive learning and working environment based on open communication, mutual respect, and inclusion.

If you are a person with a disability and anticipate needing any type of accommodation in order to participate in this class, please advise me and make appropriate arrangements with the Office of Accessibility Services (304-293-6700). For more information on West Virginia University's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion initiatives, please see <http://diversity.sandbox.wvu.edu/ddei>.

The Carruth Center provides resources to help manage stress, improve relationships, make healthy lifestyle choices, and face new challenges and transitions. The Center is in the newly constructed Health and Education Building, 390 Birch Street, located on the Evansdale campus adjacent to the Student Recreation Center. Its website is <http://well.wvu.edu/ccpps>, and its phone number (answered 24 hours) is 304-293-4431.

Course Schedule

This schedule is subject to change by me. I will inform you by email and if possible in class of any changes as early as possible.

Please Note: All readings must be done by the class period in which we will discuss them.
