Fall 2018

Katy Ryan, Professor of English
Office Hours: Tues. and Thurs. 11:30 - 12:30 and by appointment
Colson 221

This course is an introduction to the study of literature and the practice of writing. We will focus on the fundamentals of literary study: close reading, analysis, research, dialogue, reflection, writing, revising, and editing. We will also consider the history and evolution of the English major and the place of the humanities in public life.

Welcome to class!

Required Text
Michael Meyer, Literature to Go

Recommended Text
Katherine O. Acheson, Writing Essays about Literature

Course Objectives

- To introduce students to the foundations of literary study
- To strengthen skills of close reading, critical thinking, and purposeful writing
- To build a vibrant learning community

Upon completing this course, a student should be able to:

- Identify and describe literary genres
- Offer strong interpretations of complex texts in writing and in speech
- Summarize, paraphrase, and quote from texts in writing
- Compose thesis-driven arguments about literature
Requirements

1. Participation and Attendance / 20 points
Always be prepared for class. Bring with you the literary work under discussion.

You are allowed three absences for whatever reason. If you miss more than three classes, unless there is a documented emergency, you will not pass the class. See emergency policy below. Please consider carefully whether this is the class for you.

Routine tardiness will count as one absence. I will let you know when I have marked you as absent for this reason. If lateness continues, I will ask you to meet with me.

2. Four Exercises / 20 points
You will turn in four short assignments that will give you practice offering close readings, responding to scholars, writing creatively, and summarizing a critical text. Due dates on schedule.

3. Four Reader Responses / 20 points
You will compose four Reader Responses (500 words each). Three will be critical analyses and one will be a creative response. You can choose when you write the creative response.

Critical Analyses should focus on a single passage, idea, theme, question, or image from a literary work. See sample and “Quotation Review” on ECampus. Be sure to do the following:

a) Include at least three direct quotations from the literary work and provide page numbers in parenthesis after the quote.

b) Compose idea-driven and coherent paragraphs. In each paragraph, offer a topic sentence, develop a single important idea or observation, and transition into the next paragraph or, in the final paragraph, conclude your reflection.

*Read and incorporate these suggestions for writing good paragraphs. http://writing.wisc.edu/Handbook/Paragraphing.html

For the Creative Response, you do not need to quote directly from the literary work, but it should be obvious how you are responding to the literature. The word-count might also differ from the critical ones, and that is fine. Below are suggestions. You are not limited to these. Feel free to experiment.

- Be the Author: Write an additional scene to one of our works. Your scene should illuminate an important question or insight about the original. You can create a scene that would occur within, before, or after the fiction or nonfictional work.
- Create a dialogue: Imagine a conversation between two characters. The characters could be from the same or from different literary works. Again, be sure that your creative dialogue offers an important insight into the original.
- An Interview: Imagine an interview with a character or the author of one of our works. Explain who is conducting the interview, where, when, etc. Your interview should help us to define key terms, understand difficult concepts, or make sense of a confusing part of the work.
- Write a Letter: Compose a letter to an author or character. This letter should discuss a real question you have about the text and convey your interpretation.
- Write a Poem: You could experiment with an established form (villanelle, sonnet, haiku) or write in free verse.

4. Public Humanities Activity / 20 points

You can fulfill this assignment in two ways: 1) by participating in a minimum of two humanities-related events associated with the English Department, the University, the Campus Read, or Morgantown; or 2) by volunteering a minimum of three hours with a humanities-based public effort (such as the Appalachian Prison Book Project, Literacy Volunteers, reading in the local schools, a Wikipedia edit-a-thon, etc.) The humanities consist of the following disciplines: history, literature, writing, the law, religious studies, philosophy, world languages, and the classics. Please ask if you are not sure if an event would quality as “humanities-related.” I will update you on opportunities throughout the semester.

After you have completed the activity, write a 500-word reflection on the event and your engagement. These are due at any point in the semester, with a final deadline of 11/15.

Find out more about the events associated with this year’s Campus Read at https://campusread.wvu.edu/attend-our-events.

Learn more about the Appalachian Prison Book Project at https://aprisonbookproject.wordpress.com/.
5. One Essay / 20 points
You will write one critical essay (5 pp) that offers a close reading, sustains a logical argument, and integrates at least one secondary source. I will give you a specific assignment down the road.

Submission Requirements
Written assignments must be uploaded on ECampus in the appropriate folder by the due date.

Submit your materials in Word. Papers should be typed in a 12pt font and double-spaced with 1-inch margins. Always number your pages.

Writing Resources

SpeakWrite
ENGL 200 has been designated a SpeakWrite course by the Eberly College of Arts and Sciences. As part of the Eberly College’s commitment to fostering effective communication skills, this course will:

- Emphasize informal and formal modes of communication
- Teach discipline-specific communication techniques
- Use a process-based approach to learning that provides opportunities for feedback
- Base 100% of the final grade on successful written and spoken performance

![Purpose: What exactly do I want to happen?]

![Audience: Who is reading, listening, or viewing?]

![Conventions: What is expected in this context?]

![Trouble: What could get in the way of my goals?]

Writing Studio
The Writing Studio strives to help all members of the university community learn more about effective communication practices. Professional and friendly consultants work one-to-one on all stages of the writing (or speaking) process, from note-taking and pre-writing to revision strategies, proofreading techniques, and presentation practice.

Because the Writing Studio works to teach students ways to improve their own work, consultants will not proofread, edit content, or discuss grades. It is helpful to bring your assignment prompt with you on your visit. To make an appointment, call 304.293.5788 or visit the Writing Studio website (http://speakwrite.wvu.edu/writing-studio).
English Major Program Goals

Upon completing a B.A. in English, a student should be able to:

1. Interpret texts within diverse literary, cultural, and historical contexts.
2. Demonstrate a general knowledge of the social and structural aspects of the English language.
3. Demonstrate a range of contextually effective writing strategies.

Not all English courses will address all three goals; some will focus particularly on one goal. The English major curriculum as a whole will provide multiple opportunities to address every goal. The following aspects of Goal 1 are especially important to our class.

- Identify and analyze effects of complexity or ambiguity
- Locate texts in social, economic, political, and literary history
- Connect a text to other literary or cultural texts
