

ENGL 111: Introduction to Creative Writing

Tuesdays and Thursdays 11:30am -12:45pm

Section: 003, CRN: 83258

Professor: Rachael Bradley

Fall 2021

In his nonfiction book On Writing: A Memoir of the Craft, Stephen King states: “If you want to be a writer, you must do two things above all others: read a lot and write a lot. There's no way around these two things that I'm aware of, no shortcut.”

In this course, we will do exactly that: read a lot and write a lot (and talk a lot!) By exploring and studying the craft of fiction, creative nonfiction, and poetry, we'll learn to apply new techniques to our own writing and develop processes for invention and revision. We'll practice new genres, experiment with form, and use workshop as a means of improving our writing.
