Course Description:

The 19th and 20th centuries in British Literature might be seen as, on the upswing, an effort to consolidate an essentially (white, male) English identity and ideal, and on the downswing, an effort to resist and remake that identity as one more inclusive of the diversity of what was once the British Empire. As such, we will examine four major genres (poetry, prose, fiction and drama) over four periods (the Romantic, Victorian, Modernist and Contemporary), to trace the development and consolidation of Imperial Englishness, and the subsequent critique and overthrow of that monolithic identity by feminist and Anglophone writers.

The objectives of this course are broad and various. Over the next four months, you will:

- Encounter the major periods and movements of British literary history of the past 200 years;
- Explore several major works and artists of that period;
- Examine how history impacts, appears in, and is erased by literary works;
- Consider the ways that works speak to and argue with one another;
- Review known methods of literary analysis and perhaps learn new ones, including both formal and political modes;
- Refine your knowledge of the conventions surrounding writing arguments about literature.
- Begin to understand literature as living, breathing, exciting and full of ideas—NOT just a dusty collection of words by dead people.

Texts:

These texts are available at both the University Book Store. Please obtain them immediately. Occasionally supplementary readings will be made available electronically.

- Damrosch et al. eds. The Longman Anthology of British Literature V. 2a, 2b, 2c

- Bronte, Charlotte. Jane Eyre (Please pick up the Norton Critical Edition!)
- Rhy, Jean. Wide Sargasso Sea

Course Requirements:

You are expected to meet the following requirements to achieve a passing grade.

1. Complete all reading by the date it is listed in the syllabus. There is a LOT of reading in this course, so be sure to budget your time accordingly.
2. Complete all work by the date listed in the syllabus
 - Grades on all assignments will drop one letter grade for every weekday they are late.
 - Work handed in more than one week past the due date (without excused absences to justify the lateness) will automatically be graded F (55%).
 - handed in more than 2 weeks past the due date (once again without the excused absences to justify them) will receive a zero.
 - A paper is not considered turned until I have a hard copy in my hand.
 - Electronic versions via email or disk are unacceptable.
 - You must complete all major assignments in order to pass the class.
1. Participate in class discussions and activities in such a way that enhances learning for both yourself and your classmates.

Assignments and Grading:

Quizzes Throughout the semester, I will give unannounced quizzes to 1) determine the degree to which you have been reading both primary and secondary texts, and the degree to which you've absorbed in-class material, and 2) highlight important material in the reading. They will happen as necessary, so keep up with the reading. Quizzes that are missed because of documented absence or documented tardiness will simply be averaged out of your final quiz average. Quizzes will be factored together with participation depending on the number given.

15% Participation See course requirement #3. Attendance will also factor into this grade, so if your absence is documented, please let me know so I can measure your participation accordingly.

15%/20% Critical Papers Two papers, one 4-6 pages, the other 6-8, will be assigned; in each case, a topic will be assigned, but you will have significant room and responsibility to develop your own argument within those assignments. As with all academic arguments, you will be asked to craft a unique thesis, and support it with individual claims that are themselves bolstered by substantial textual evidence. Please feel free to come to office hours to discuss drafts of papers.

15% Group Project The group project will take place throughout the semester on various dates marked in the syllabus. Groups of 5-6 people will be responsible for reading the material in the various "Perspectives" section of the anthologies, assigning a single additional reading from that section to the class, and teaching that text and its context in a creative, engaging fashion. Students will choose their groups on August 26.

15% Midterm May include short answer questions, quote identifications and a short essay that cover the first half of the semester.

20% Final Exam Will include short answer questions, quote identifications, and an essay that cover the entire semester, but will be weighted toward the second half.

Attendance Policy:

Attendance for this class is required. If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to gather notes or make up any material. You must also provide documentation for that absence, which may include a note written and signed by you, explaining the reason for your absence—hangovers and oversleeping, for example, will not be considered documented. If you accumulate 4 or more undocumented absences, you will forfeit your participation grade. If you accumulate 7 or more undocumented absences (two-plus full weeks of class), you will fail the course.

Furthermore, significant absenteeism (under any circumstances) will affect your grade. Missing ten or more classes will warrant your failure of the course. Therefore, even if your absences are excused, you will want to make an effort to attend as often as possible.

Finally, excessive tardiness is also a problem. Late entrance into class is disruptive to the workings of the class, assignments are collected at the beginning of class, and quizzes will be administered in the first 15 minutes of class. Quizzes missed because of an unexcused tardy will not be made up, and assignments turned in late because of tardiness will be considered late.

Format For Papers:

All out-of-class assignments must adhere to the following criteria: typed or word-processed, Times New Roman 12-point font (see me if this is a problem), double-spaced, 1 inch or 1.25 inch margins, spell-checked, page-numbered, and finally, stapled or paper-clipped.

Submissions that do not meet these requirements will be dropped as much as a letter grade.

Please note: I am seriously troubled by students who fiddle with the physical appearance of the paper so as to achieve the illusion of length. This belief assumes that I cannot tell the difference between quantity and quality, and I find that personally offensive. A paper that is shorter than the assigned length but presented in an honest way will earn far more respect.

Writing Groups

The two papers will likely require a process-oriented approach, one that will likely require time outside of class. Therefore, please form a writing group with the members of your group project members. Writing group members should exchange drafts in advance, should meet once outside of class for each paper, and should provide one another with a paragraph of written feedback. I will evaluate this process as each paper is turned in, and that evaluation will contribute to your class participation grade, so do not skip out on this process.

Special Circumstances:

If you have a registered disability that might affect your performance in this course, let me know as soon as possible and I will make whatever accommodations are warranted. If you have a disability that is not registered, please contact the Office of Disability Services (G30 Mountainlair, 3-6700, TDD3-7740) here on campus as soon as possible in order to get the documentation to me. While I am entirely sympathetic to accommodating disabilities, getting help is your responsibility, and until I have documentation, my hands are tied. If you suspect that some other circumstance may affect your performance this semester (University Athletics, etc.), please let me know as soon as possible.

Academic Dishonesty

Academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. Because the various forms of academic dishonesty have proliferated in the past few years, I have begun to take this problem very seriously. Academic dishonesty cheats you out of your education. Moreover, there is an underlying assumption of absolute disrespect for your classmates, your instructor and your institution. If you are panicking and feel like you might be forced to rely on academic dishonesty, please please please try to see me about other options.

It is your responsibility to be informed about your responsibilities. For more information on the University's Code of Academic Integrity, visit <http://www.arc.wvu.edu/admissions/integrity.html>
